How to Evaluate Your Local Water Service

"How to Evaluate Your Water Service" is a 48-page evaluation manual for public officials and water utility managers. It helps them to analyze their systems in terms of capacity, mains, distribution, pumping, hydrants, storage, metering and other factors.

According to the publisher, Johns-Manville, it is expected that the manual will be used by the industry to evaluate its systems and upgrade them in relation to the increasing public demand for high quality water rather than just quantity.

Congratulations are certainly in order for the Elba Tigers and the fine season they have finished, and there was no better way to end it than by whipping the Charles Henderson Trojans of Troy. Throughout the season there were great individual performances and team efforts. The seniors on this year's team deserve credit for providing the leadership that is so necessary on any team, and the sophomores and juniors who played make us look to next year with very high hopes. Again congratulations to the Tigers!

Looking forward a bit to New Year's Day, rumors are around (and they are always around) that the Orange Bowl people favor an Alabama-Nebraska match-up. They are supposedly gambling that Nebraska will knock off Oklahoma on Thanksgiving Day, and that Alabama will whip Auburn the following Saturday. These are definitely twobig "ifs" but even if both teams should lose their last game, it would be a classic struggle between two very similar teams.

Perhaps the biggest "wait and see" action being taken by the bowl officials has to do with the Auburn Tigers. The worst War Eagles can show is an 8-2 won-loss record, but they had better not lose big to either Georgia or Alabama if they expect a major bowl invitation. For Auburn, the whole season (Southeastern Conference championship, national ranking, and bowl big rides on the last two games, which will be played against two undefeated teams. This isn't exactly an ideal situation, but my guess is the Tigers will win at least one of the two and find themselves in New Orleans (Sugar Bowl) or Dallas (Cotton Bowl) on New Year's Day. And I'll also guess that the "Hama-Nebraska deal is not a rumor, and that the Tide will face the Cornhuskers in the Orange Bowl.

Increase Your Banking Power

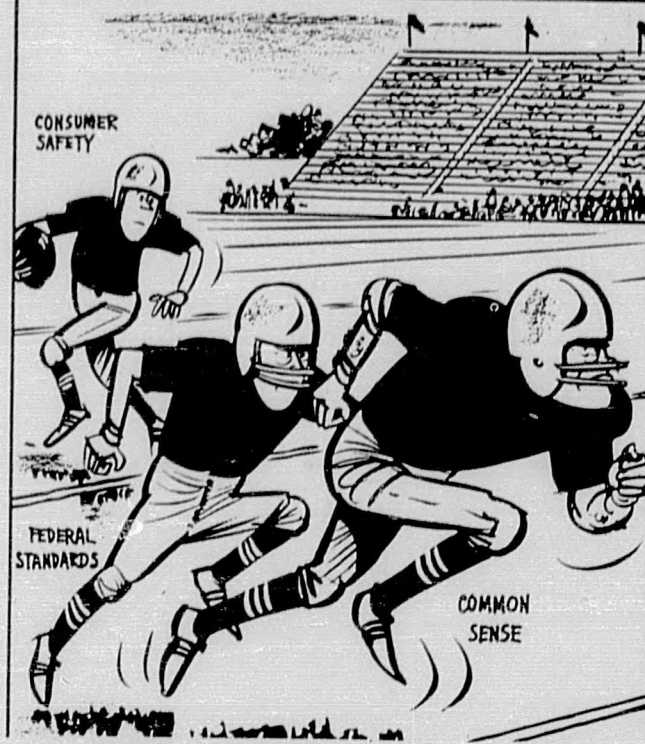

Have you ever come up with the perfect plan for your business, only to have the bank turn down your loan? Has your competition been able to take advantage of you because of his ability to obtain loans? If the answer to either of these questions is yes, chances are you are not using your banking power. Banks are in the business of loaning money and it is up to you to furnish them with evidence that their money is safe. Here are a few things the small businessman should remember when the time to apply for a loan arises. First, trade at your per-

We have heard a lot of gubbling lately about the courthouse being closed on Saturdays. As most of these conversations continue, we also hear complaints of the courthouse offices closing from 12 until 1 each day. I understand the fact that "it always has" but . . . the horse and buggy days are over and maybe a re-scheduling of lunch time is in order. On Tuesday of this week I discussed this with Probate Judge James Sawyer and suggested consideration be given to staggering lunch hours where more than one person worked in an office and closing those with only one person in them at some time other than the noon hour when several thousand people who punch a clock have time to handle their courthouse business.

LEADING THE INTERFERENCE!

Want PTA? Act Now Parents!

Several weeks ago the editor of this newspaper expressed surprise that there was no PTA in Elba and no plans to organize one. Since that time there have been numerous people who have said they felt the schools and the students would profit from an active PTA but they did not want to be the one to get it started! Others have said to reorganize and operate as the PTA did before would be a waste of time. This newspaper is issuing this gentle reminder to the community in hopes that somewhere there are some parents who will take the bull by the horns and get the Elba PTA reorganized. Along with this, may we suggest the schedule of monthly (or every other month) meetings be strongly centered around parents discussing with teachers the progress (or lack of progress) a child is making.

Also, the parents should be willing to take a part in leading the organization, rather than leaving that to the school officials. Speakers should not be obtained just to have a speaker but to discuss something important and interesting to the group. No speaker at all is more productive than a boring speaker.

Act now parents! Two thousand Elba school students are depending on you.

No Better Place Than Brockton

The controversy over the decision of the County Commissioners to locate the new farm-related building complex in New Brockton is still making good conversation wherever a discussion group gathers. Citizens of Elba and Enterprise readily admit wanting the building in their town. The commissioners note that the building is centrally located to better serve the people it was built for - the farmers. The people of New Brockton are undoubtedly pleased.

In an editorial Monday, The Daily Ledger of Enterprise discussed the controversy and the expected dispute if any move were launched to move the courthouse from either Elba or Enterprise. They noted that "the present systems of two courthouses keeps the county government as close as practical to the people." The editorial continued, "Many county courthouses aren't such a bad situation after all."

The editorial ended with a statement that has been uttered from all corners of the county, "But, if an eventual outcome is to be a courthouse complex in New Brockton . . . if Enterprise is to lose its county offices, we can't think of a better place for them to be located than in New Brockton."

These statements have been made by people in Enterprise, Kinston, Zion Chapel, Elba and of course, New Brockton. The county commissioners and the Probate Judge assure all concerned that they have no intention of moving the courthouses from their present locations. It is our belief that the centrally locating of these farm-related offices is the right thing (of course being greedy we would have preferred them to be located in "The County Seat.")

Rural Voters Want Machines

Again this week the County Commissioners heard a request for voting machines to be installed in areas where paper ballots are still in use. This time it was Beat 7 and Beat 8, both below Enterprise. They currently serve about 200 voters. When plans are introduced that would allow all Coffee County voters to vote on machines there is a howl of protest. "The old hands" who have enjoyed the feeling of power when handling the paper ballots and being delivered the returns to the courthouse following the election.

We have beats in the County with less than 75 voters and if machines were used throughout the county they would probably be combined with other beats for voting. Naturally there were those who opposed this. Therefore we suggest that machines be used in all beats with 150 or 200 voters or more. This would not offend those who want to preserve their beat voting and would be a step forward.

CAPITAL VIEWS

Busing has hit the North, and it is getting a rude reception from Northern townspeople and their heretofore sanctimonious representatives in Congress. It was always a "Southern" problem before, although I had warned my colleagues outside the South that our problem would soon be theirs.

I enjoy reading the Elba Clipper and look forward to receiving it each week. You and your staff are to be congratulated for excellent service to the public in the field of news media. Keep Up The Good Work.

Dear Sir:
I wonder if it would be possible for you to run a piece in your paper for me. I am trying to locate a man and his sister. I have not seen them in 30 years and I would love to get in touch with them.

His name is Foy D. Fleming and his sister is married and I don't know her name. We were school pals together.

Yours truly,

Questions From Readers

QUESTION: What is the U. S. Senate doing to try to prevent pollution of the Nation's water resources? SPARKMAN: The Senate voted $6-0 for a bill that proposes to clean up the Nation's water resources by 1985. If the Senate version of the bill becomes law all pollution discharges from factories and municipal waste treatment plants will be barred from the Nation's water resources by 1985. It is the intent of this bill to bring to bear every level of government and every industry in the Nation in a combined effort to use anti-pollution technology already available to us to stop the alarming deterioration of the Nation's streams and lakes. One of the goals of the bill is to make the rivers and lakes of Alabama and the rest of the Nation safe for swimming and for marine and wildlife by 1981. I voted for this bill and I am optimistic about its chances of becoming law.

QUESTION: What is the monthly withdrawal rate of U. S. troops from Vietnam? SPARKMAN: Currently the withdrawal rate is 14,000 per month. The outlook is that this rate will be increased to 20,000 per month in the near future.

QUESTION: Are South Vietnamese forces strong enough to hold off the Communists in South Vietnam? SPARKMAN: It appears that they are. Reports that we get indicate that the North Vietnamese Army is suffering some deterioration, while the South Vietnamese Army has shaped up into excellent combat condition.

QUESTION: What is the name of the dog that was named after the Faith Business Bureau of San Francisco in response to a newspaper advertisement?

NEW HOPE HALLOWEEN CARNIVAL ENJOYED

These characters along with many interested parents, friends and teachers enjoyed an evening of fun and hilarity Thursday evening, Oct. 28, 1971, at New Hope Junior High School's Halloween Carnival.

The doors opened at 6:30 p.m., giving everyone an opportunity to shop for bargains at the Country Store or try their luck on the Wheel of Fortunes. If their nerves could take it, they visited the Horror House, then satisfied their appetites at the Sweet Shop. Many sat down for a game of Bingo, while others shopped at the Rummage Sale.

At 8 o'clock everyone was invited to the auditorium, which was filled to capacity.

A musical program was presented by Johnny Anderson and Steve Williams, after which drawing were made for electric blankets, a percolator, a radio, a watch, ice chest, flashlight, iron, ice cream freezer, and a reel and reel.

The climax of the Carnival was the crowning of the King and Queen of the Junior High and Elementary School.

The fifth grade, under the direction of Mrs. Lynn P. Wilson, took all honors in the Elementary School.

Atlas M. Green, a fifth grader, son of Mr. and Mrs. Knox Green was crowned King of the Elementary School and Rhonda Galloway, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Davis Galloway, was crowned Queen of the Elementary School.

The fifth grade also won the prize for selling the most tickets, a total of 791. Mavis Downing, a seventh grader, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Downing, was crowned Queen of the Junior High School. Miss Downing was escorted by Randy Galloway, son of Mr. and Mrs. Davis Galloway.

The Carnival was a tremendous success.

Enterprise Home Wrecked By Explosion

An explosion that shot flames estimated by some observers to a height of over 200 feet, sent Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Reddock to the hospital early Tuesday evening.

Firemen, shifting through the wreckage of the Reddock home on Gilbert Street, Enterprise, believe the fire was caused by a leak in an old gas tank in the rear of the house. The tank was no longer in use but it is believed pipes still ran into the house. The tank valve was found open.

The explosion took place about 6:45 p.m. Mrs. Reddock was pinned under some of the wreckage as fire began to spread. Ken Bond and Heywood Watkins entered the house, rushed Mr. Reddock out, and with a light provided by Ralph Andrews, located Mrs. Reddock. A water hose was brought in and Mrs. Reddock was "wet down" and covered with a blanket.

Jailed in the shooting was Owen Thomas, according to authorities. Thomas is the Enterprise Rescue Squad. Mrs. Reddock was taken to the hospital by ambulance. She is reported to have two broken legs. Mr. Reddock received a laceration on his face and a cut in the head.
